15th International Conference on Renewable Mobility – “Fuels of the Future”

The international conference on “Fuels of the Future” represents the leading European forum on the issue of future mobility, particularly with its focus on alternative fuels and drive technologies.

The 15th International Conference on Renewable Mobility will offer a broad spectrum of presentations on the latest technological developments in the transport industry and we wish you an informative visit to the conference. Again more than 500 participants are expected. The full conference programme, how to register and information for potential exhibitors and sponsors can be found at the conference website.
